Discuss: What do you know about what this woman is wearing?

For your first assignment, I want you to find one image from around the world. It must be a current event (within the last month), and must be from a reputable source – from a news website like CBC, BBC, or the Vancouver Sun; not from Reddit.

Once you have found a powerful image, try to find out as much as you can about the information surrounding this event, considering as many angles as you can. As you research, fill out the chart below:

Background information: Consider Who, What, When, Why, Where, How Come?	What makes this image important to the world? To Canada?	Are there any dissenting opinions concerning this event?
A question you could ask other students that sparks discussion:

Finally, be prepared to present your current event to a small group next class. Make sure to bring in your device or print your picture to share your image. Also, have this page of notes to hand in to me.
